

Today we went out to the mountains for a little while. We travelled thru sun-kissed golden hallways amid leaf-storms that swirled around us and danced across our windshield. Such a beautiful day!

It is often said that people who are older are in their third quarter or in the autumn of their life. I think God prepares the gorgeous colors of Nature in the fall to remind us that, even tho we “lose our leaves” as we age, there is still such incredible beauty to see even in the autumn of our life. Focus on the beauty around you no matter your age.
